The Great McGregor Trial Has Ended.

BRIEF VERDICT OF THE JURY

Convicts of Murder in the Second Degree.

THE SATISFACTION IS GENERAL

Prosecutor Speaker Finished His Plea and Judge Billingsley Charged the Jury Yesterday—Then They Deliberated For a Time, and the Trial Was Over. The Prisoner's Appearance—Motion For a New Trial—May Be Argued Monday—Attorney P. M. Smith Talks of the Case and Its Features.

Special to the News Review.

NEW LISBON, Nov. 29.—The McGregor trial, one of the most interesting and at once the most important criminal prosecutions in the history of the county, came to an end last night when the jury declared that the accused was guilty of murder in the second degree, and he was taken back to the miserable jail on the hill, there to wait until the judge will call him for final sentence.

When Prosecutor Speaker continued the eloquent and logical argument which he gave forth yesterday afternoon, he said:

"Alma said that McGregor told her Lizzie was snoring on the back porch when he came to the Morrison house. You see he had it all arranged. Death is an awful thing, we have all seen it. All know that when the spirit leaves the body becomes changed. When it has laid for several hours it is stiff and cold. Now, McGregor said that she was snoring 15 minutes before Alma Walters shrieked because the hand she touched was cold. The defense have endeavored to prove by Alma Walters that there were no marks upon the neck. They do not call her their witness; but in cross-examination she testified that the side of Lizzie's face exposed to her gaze was black and swollen. She did not want to lift the veil further than was absolutely necessary; she was afraid. She knew her danger. She said to you that McGregor and Morrison talked together that morning, but she could not hear; and when they were carrying their ghastly burden to the grave, wrapped in that which resembled a sheet, she turned her head away. She could not look; she was horrified, low as she was. This proves to you that there was still in her a remnant of that grand womanhood that exists on earth. She said that McGregor wanted to cut up that body and throw it into the river. An innocent man would not do that. I desire to cast no reflection on any one, to apply no harsh epithets to the defendant, but Doctor Tarr, alone of all the witnesses, said that the body lay in that grave upon the right side, and said this to find a cause for the marks upon the head. Eleven months after this ghastly burial the remains were unearthed and taken to the undertaker's. Doctors Tarr and Holland said at the inquest that Lizzie Ewing had died of strangulation. After the inquest Doctors Tarr and Denslow stole to that place, at the approach of dusk, to examine alone. Why did they do this? Why did they not call the other physicians? They took off the head at the breastbone, just where the hole in the neck was found, and why was this? This is not a case dependent entirely upon medical testimony. If this be disease, if this woman suffered from this most awful disease, the marks have not that appearance. Doctor Park said that at the second examination the skin of the front of the neck was gone. Had the scalp been examined at all those marks would have shown what they really were. There were other marks, and some doctors said they were due to disease. I do not say that some of this is true, for when you put a man on the stand he swears to facts. He swears to what he saw and heard, and if he goes beyond, the court will stop him; but experts do not testify to these things. Almost providentially Doctor Parke happened to see the remains. He found a mark in the throat. This mark deep and livid, and others on the right side. Two or three persons have said that a right hand shut tightly over that throat would produce just such marks as were there seen. If this was apoplexy it must have been a severe case. If Lizzie Ewing was the victim of disease instead of crime there would have been no shrieks; apoplexy does not make shrieks. All symptoms found that night could not show that she died by accident or any other disease. You have heard the testimony and in a few minutes will file to the jury room there to decide upon a verdict. I do not ask mercy, but I do ask that there be no stealing of sympathy. I want you to do your duty, but consider this important matter carefully."

When Judge Billingsley rose to deliver his charge to the jury the court room was still. Not a sound save the clear cut sentences of the able gentleman could be heard. He spoke deliberately, and with a force which carried power in every word. There was no wavering. He meant what he said, and the jury knew it. He told them that they could return a verdict for murder in the first, second or third degrees, and analyzed each crime as it is laid down in the law. If there was a reasonable doubt in their minds they were to consider that the prosecution was at an end. He warned them against using the fact that McGregor did not appear on the stand as evidence against him, and told them that the juryroom was no place for sympathy. Judge Billingsley touched upon the fact that threats against the life of Lizzie Ewing had been made by the defendant, but they must weigh well the one truth that in his intoxication they came from his lips. It was a charge that any learned and right minded man would believe, and evidently made no little impression upon those for whom it was intended.

When the jury filed out of the room the waiting time began. Slowly the hours passed away and there was no indication. At length writing material was passed into the room, and people knew that a verdict was about to be returned. All the interested parties were brought into court, and Clerk King made the simple announcement that Jesse McGregor was guilty of murder in the second degree. During the brief silence which followed, the defense made a motion for a new trial, and the people went away. McGregor was taken back to jail, his friends departed for their hotels, and the trial with all its exciting incidents was at an end.

SAVING NOTHING.

McGregor Does Not Express Any Opinion.

Special to the News Review.

NEW LISBON, Nov. 29.—Jesse McGregor, who has been found guilty of murder in the second degree, says not one word of what he experienced when the words of the jury fell upon his ear. He evidently expected some verdict other than what was returned, as he was more talkative and wore a more hopeful expression than during the entire trial. As he listened to the verdict his face assumed another expression, and his eyes were turned almost appealingly upon the jury. Then the old look came back, the brows contracted just a little, and the same man who has so stoically heard the testimony against him sat once more looking at the jury. As one of the attorneys put it, "he had his nerve again." This morning it was learned at the jail that he was acting as usual, did not appear nervous, but would not talk about the trial or his chances for another.

His sister, who has been so faithful in her attendance, was also visibly affected by the verdict, and for a moment looked pained and shocked. She recovered a little before leaving the court room, but still looked worried before the party left for the night. The lady has unlimited confidence in her wayward brother, and in spite of all that has been said, she has never once expressed anything but firm belief in his innocence. She has comforted and consoled him, and was always at his call when he needed her aid. She has steadily refused to believe ill of him, and to a lady here said that she expected him to be cleared of the charge without the slightest trouble. The disappointment told on her, and the casual observer could not but see that it almost broke her heart to know that the stigma of crime was fastened upon her brother forever. Her appearance caused the pity of all, and she has the heartfelt sympathy of those who have seen her every day since the trial began.

THEY ARE SATISFIED.

Public Opinion Expected No Other Verdict.

Special to the News Review.

NEW LISBON, Nov. 29.—When the verdict was read last night the general expression was the same. More people said "I told you so" than has ever been heard before at the county seat. The evidence did not warrant any other verdict, and it was the only thing the jury could do. That is the sentiment of the people here, and seems to be the sentiment of the attorneys. The counsel for state and prosecution showed their ability in bringing forward and putting aside the testimony advanced, and legal men all know that a battle in which each side can claim honor has been fought. The intense interest shown during the trial was largely centered upon the attorneys, and their every move was closely watched.

MR. SMITH TALKS.

How the Defense Sees the Verdict Today.

Attorney P. M. Smith was interviewed at his home in Wellsville today respecting the verdict, and gave the News Review representative the following:

"The verdict is not a complete surprise to the counsel for the defense. I say this on account of the fact that public sentiment had been hotly against McGregor, our client, and that the jury in the case were strongly influenced by this sentiment, as was very natural, they, the jury, going freely among outsiders when free from the jury box, and eagerly listening to criticisms upon all sides respecting the trial. This sentiment controlled very strongly and had its weight in drawing the minds of jurors from the real facts and testimony in the trial. I am free to say that the evidence adduced in court, taken into consideration with the clear and able charge of Judge Billingsley, does not warrant the verdict of guilty as given against our client, Jesse McGregor. Of course you are aware of the fact that a new trial has been asked for by the defense. This will be argued, no doubt, before His Honor, Judge Billingsley, within the next 10 days or two weeks. In case of an adverse decision, then appeal will be made through the regular channel, the circuit court. In case of failure before that body, then we will carry the matter to the supreme court. Everything that men can do, we will do for our client, as we believe him to be innocent of the crime of murdering Lizzie Ewing. As I said before, we believe that public sentiment, wrought up through newspaper criticisms and other influences brought to bear upon the case, had much to do with the conviction of Jesse McGregor, and we believe that, in case a new trial is granted, reaction will have taken place, the testimony and cold facts will take the place of over wrought, developed sentiment, and our client will go forth a free man."

MAY LOSE AN EYE.

John Porter is Seriously Injured at Pittsburgh.

John Porter, the well known young man who clerked for a time in the store of his father, Henry E. Porter, in this city, is lying at the West Penn hospital, Pittsburgh, seriously injured, and the chances are that the sight of his right eye is totally destroyed.

His injuries are the result of an accident which happened Tuesday evening. When 6 o'clock came all the boys employed in the establishment of the Pittsburgh Dry Goods company hurried and washed their hands before going to their homes. Porter was among the rest, and while they were crowding each other about the electric lights were suddenly extinguished, and at the same time one of the boys threw a broom. The point of the handle struck Porter in the right eye and broke the ball. It was seen that he was badly injured, and the ambulance was speedily summoned to take him to the West Penn hospital. Mr. and Mrs. Porter went to Pittsburgh on the 5 o'clock train yesterday morning, and in a letter to Manager Clark Beymer, of the People's store, stated this morning that the attending physicians had very slight hopes of preserving the sight of the eye.

John McKinney and Homer Risinger were in Pittsburgh last night attending Professor Christie's reception and called on their injured friend. They found him still under the influence of ether while the doctors were operating on his eye.

MORLEY DENIES IT ALL

Colonel H. R. Hill Filed a Short Answer

TO THE SENSATIONAL ROSE SUIT.

In Which $10,000 Damages Are Asked by Charles Rose From Philip Morley. It May Be Placed in the Next Assignment.

Special to the News Review.

NEW LISBON, Nov. 29.—The case of Rose against Morley, in which the plaintiff asks $10,000 damages and makes a number of charges against the defendant, was given another turn in court last night.

Colonel H. R. Hill filed an answer to the sensational petition of Charles Rose recorded here several weeks ago. In it the defendant, Philip Morley, acknowledged that he knew that Charles Rose and his wife were married and lived together, but beyond that he knows nothing, denying every charge made by Rose. The denial is emphatic. The case may be placed in the next assignment, and as that goes on next week there is a possibility that East Liverpool people will be treated to the sensational developments of the case much sooner than was expected. It will be remembered that Rose is under indictment for shooting at his wife.

BEAT THE BOY.

And the Father Causes the School Teacher's Arrest.

Humane Agent Lloyd was busy yesterday. A case of what appeared to be punishment in an entirely unnecessary degree was brought to him shortly after the Deltz cruelty to animal case, and at Squire Travis' office the tale was told. John W. Crawford and his son Frank, a boy 13 years of age, were the complainants. They were from St. Clair township, and Mr. Crawford said his son attended the Fredericktown school. On Friday last the teacher, Joshua Todd, of Wellsville, had punished young Crawford for some slight infraction of the rules. When lessons were over the two started homeward, but in different directions. The boy picked up a pebble and threw it at the teacher, but it did not strike him, and so further trouble was experienced. On Monday when the boy went to school he heard that the teacher had said he intended whipping him, and the father says he heard the same story before the boy started. Later in the day the promised whipping was given. Young Crawford was called up by Todd and whipped, he claims, with a white thorn stick. He came home in the evening covered with marks of the punishment he had received, and the father was so indignant that he could scarcely keep his hands off the teacher. He inquired into the matter very carefully, and then came to this city to consult the humane officers. The boy showed to the squire, Mr. Lloyd, the reporter and others big bruises on one leg and both shoulders, and red marks on his arm. A warrant was sworn out for Todd's arrest, and the following witnesses summoned from among those who were present when the whipping occurred: Kate Stanley, Glen Meeks, Mary McFarland, Anna Knowles, Thomas Miner. Constable Albright served the papers on Todd at his home in Wellsville today, and the hearing will be at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Mr. Lloyd states that the society has several other cases that will be attended to soon, and the principals will have to face the squire and answer to serious charges.

ONE DAY WE LOVE.

Thanksgiving Being Duty Celebrated Today.

The great American holiday was generally observed in the city today, thousands paying just and honest tribute to his lordship, King Turkey. The potteries were not closed in their entirety, although a great many potters did not appear at their benches. Many concerns, realizing that some of their men desired to work, kept the plants open for those of this class. The others made merry during the day, which proved one of exceptional gladness to many persons. The postoffice observed the day by keeping holiday hours, and some of the business houses closed a few hours this afternoon.

Union services at the First Presbyterian church were attended by a large crowd. Reverend Whitehead preached an eloquent sermon, dealing with the many things for which the nation and the city should be thankful. His address was directed to all, and proved interesting and appropriate.

School duties were laid aside today and the scholars took advantage of the vacation afforded by the holiday. They will resume their work tomorrow morning as usual every year, despite the fact that it closes the school week. The younger scholars, and some of the older ones perhaps, are looking anxiously forward to the vacation during the holidays near at hand.

A portion of the employees of the freight depot are idle today but others thought it was a better plan to attend to business and avoid the rush tomorrow. Not much new business was done at the station.

Those who attended the balls in Steubenville and Toronto enjoyed pleasant evenings and returned home on the early train.

Travel on the railroad today was large, a large number of persons going from the city to visit in other points. A number went to Pittsburgh, not a few went down the river, and a party went to Rochester to see the foot ball game at Junction park. The beautiful weather made traveling pleasant, and as usual East Liverpool took advantage of the occasion.

A dance was given in the rooms over the Murphy storeroom in the Diamond last night, and a number of young people spent an enjoyable evening there.

MANY THEFTS.

Snacks Visit Almost a Half Dozen Places This Week.

Snack thieves have been at work in this city to an alarming extent. In less than four days five business houses have been visited.

The latest was a burglary at the saloon of Webber & Hague, the thieves entering by an alley window a most 15 feet from the ground, and stealing $5 in change and two bottles of whiskey. They left the marks of a jimmy on the window ledge, but no other clue.

The shop of Robert Boyd was entered the other day in broad daylight, and a small amount of money secured by some unknown thief. The matter was kept quiet with the hope that the thief might be caught, but to no avail.

The other places entered were Croxall's pottery, Frazier's coal office and the Patterson works, the Joseph robbery occurring a couple of weeks ago.

The work is undoubtedly that of novices and they will sooner or later be captured if they continue operations as they have been doing.

REAR END COLLISION.

Slight Accident on the Street Railway Today.

There was a slight smashup on the electric line this morning when cars 30 and 34 attempted to get closer together than their numbers permitted.

Motorman Marsh's car, No. 30 was standing in front of the postoffice in Wellsville when the other car approached with Motorman Ohlendorf in charge. The brakes on 34 would not work and it crashed into the other coach in a manner intended to stand unsuspecting passengers on their craniums. The canvas vestibule on No. 30 was wrecked, but the motorman was unhurt, and the passengers suffered nothing worse than a severe shaking up.

The trolley wire was down on the electric line at Walker's this morning and passengers were transferred for several hours while repairs were made.

Patrick Was Pulled.

Patrick O'Rourke filled up with whisky Tuesday night, and about 11:30 o'clock, as Officers Wyman and Supplee passed the O'Rourke residence, Second street, they found Pat celebrating. He had driven his wife out of the rear door in her bare feet and she was almost frozen to the brick pavement, while a son was chased from the front of the building. Patrick took the officers up stairs to show them that the children were not properly attended to, and then got into bed with the remark, "You can't take me out of my bed." He changed his mind and howled with pain when Officer Wyman grabbed him and marched him off to jail.

How They Observed It.

The dance given by the Columbian club last night was attended by a large number of society people, and Bradshaw hall was filled. The lunch was served in the room at midnight, after which dancing was continued until a late hour. The event was one of the most successful ever conducted by this popular organization.

Made a Purchase.

J. Dowling, a Liverpool man who has been traveling for a Cleveland house, has purchased the dry goods store of Mr. Smith in Wellsville. The gentleman is a good business man, and will doubtless make a success of his new venture. The stock is at present being inventoried.

A TRIO OF BANDITS.

They Rob a Store and Inmates at Checotah, I. T.

JIM FRENCH WAS THE LEADER.

The Customers and Clerks Placed in a Row—The Robbers Took All They Want—A Train Heavily Guarded for an Expected Holdup.

SOUTH McALESER, I. T., Nov. 29.—Three robbers, heavily armed and headed by Jim French of the Cook gang at Checotah, held up and robbed a store full of men, and after taking all the small cash in sight and coolly helping themselves to blankets, tobacco, etc., drove away.

The robbery occurred at the general store of Lafayette brothers. One of the robbers stood on guard while French and the others entered. The clerks and customers present, numbering nine people, were arranged in a line. French demanded of the cashier that he open the safe. Luckily it had a time lock on it. French then helped himself to what he could find, $35, and in an extremely cool and deliberate manner selected what blankets, tobacco, groceries, etc., he wanted for.

French said he would shoot the first man that moved and his word was sufficient to turn the horrified nine men into statues. Having secured all in sight they warned the bandits, with a second admonition to the inmates of the store not to follow, mounted their horses and fled rapidly away in a southerly direction.

A holdup is expected at Bond, a few miles from here. The news was received at Muskogee in time to put 22 guards on the southbound train. United States Judge Stewart and Marshal McAleser are also aboard and have given positive orders to shoot till the last man falls. If the train is held up there promises to be a fight.

Robbers Fought by a Fireman.

AUSTIN, Tex., Nov. 29.—About a half mile east of Elka two masked men climbed over an engine tank on the Southern Pacific road and ordered the engineer to stop the train. They ordered the fireman to go back and cut the train behind the express car. He only cut the hose and ran to the coaches. The robbers boarded the engine and tried to run out, but could not. They then left the engine and nothing more was seen of them. Blood hounds have been telegraphed for and will be here in a few hours.

IRWIN'S LUCK TURNS.

Governor Flower Won't Honor Requisition—Admitted to Bail.

ALBANY, Nov. 29.—Requisition for George M. Irwin has been presented at the executive chamber, and the governor declined to issue his warrant, on the ground that the papers were insufficient. Further papers will probably be presented.

A New York special says: George M. Irwin, the Pittsburgh speculator who was arrested last week, charged with swindling his customers out of nearly a million dollars, has been admitted to bail in $3,000, by Judge Ingram, in the court of oyer and terminer. John S. Ferguson, a Pittsburgh lawyer, deposited the money and Irwin was released.

Silver Conference Resolutions.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 29.—The silver conference has adopted resolutions, which, after reciting that the fall in prices was due to the conspiracy of the money power to demonetize silver, denounce the issuance of bonds to maintain the government's credit, the proposed delegating to banking institutions of the right to issue paper currency, call upon the supporters of free silver to subordinate everything to the election of men pledged to the coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 and provide for the appointment of a committee of five to take charge of the formation of silver leagues in every city and town in the entire country.

Bayard Not Alarmed.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—Although United States Ambassador Bayard refuses to talk to any extent he intimates that there need be no special trouble concerning Great Britain's attitude at Bluefields. General Barrios, an envoy of the Nicaraguan government, is in London to try to compromise the differences between the two governments.

Ex-Governor Bowie Sinking.

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 29.—All hope of the recovery of ex-Governor Bowie, who was stricken with paralysis on Monday night, has been abandoned. His condition has grown worse and the family say that death may occur at any moment. Telegrams have been sent to distant relatives and friends, warning them of the ex-governor's precarious condition.

St. John's New Position.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 29.—E. St. John, general manager of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad, has been elected vice president of the Seaboard Air Line to succeed Major John C. Winder, resigned.

How the House Stands.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—The unofficial list of representatives in the Fifty-fourth congress is finally prepared, shows 214 Republicans, 104 Democrats and 6 Populists, one silver and one vacant.

Must Go Up for Life.

The Report Not Believed.

DURANGO, Col., Nov. 29.—The report that the Southern Utes have left their reservation and gone into Utah has not been confirmed and is not credited here. Agent Day is at the reservation.

Filed a Dismissal.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 29.—D. W. Howe, attorney for the appellants in the Iron Hill case before the supreme court has filed a dismissal of the case.

CHINA SUES FOR PEACE.

Her Proposition to Be Presented by the United States Minister.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—China has succumbed to the inevitable and has sued for peace. And her proposition will be presented to Japan through the United States minister at Peking and Tokio, thus promising a termination of the war, as the result in part, at least, of the exercise of the good offices of the United States.

It is not probable at this time to learn the terms of China's proposition as handed to Minister Denny, but it is probable that it provides for but two concessions—a money indemnity and a relinquishment of suzerainty over Korea. It is improbable that the first tender will be acceptable to Japan, as such overtures rarely are, but this proposition will open the way to counter offer of terms by Japan through Minister Dun and the negotiations, if successful and if they follow the usual course, will lead first to a truce under proper guarantee, or a preliminary agreement to cease hostilities, and finally to the signature of a definite treaty of peace.

Just how this proposition was brought about is not yet known. It is probable, however, that as the matter is in the hands of the American ministers in China and Japan, the visit of Mr. Deering, commissioner of maritime customs at Tsien Tsin to Japan, cannot be directly connected with the peace negotiations as has been supposed.

ROASTS JUDGE GOFF.

Governor Tillman Says He Is Implicated in a Dirty Trick.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Nov. 29.—Governor Tillman, in his annual message, speaking of the contest pending in the federal courts between the state and Washington Light Infantry of Charleston over guns claimed by the latter as private property, says:

"These papers show conclusively that the arms are state property, subject to the disposition and control of the governor, and a prompt decision to that effect from the bench was what we had a right to expect, but the Hon. Judge Goff of the United States court of appeals 'took the papers' and has them. Yet no decision has been rendered, and after next week B. R. Tillman can no longer call himself governor of South Carolina."

"Herein lies the dirty trick to which Judge Goff has lent himself. One would have supposed that he had too much self-respect and regard for his high office to descend so low."

Broom Men Combine.

AMSTERDAM, N. Y., Nov. 29.—A big consolidation of broom manufacturers has been made in this city. It consists of the following firms: Myers & Parker of Fultonville, N. Y.; E. Howard & Sons of Fort Hunter, N. Y.; Dallas Broom company of Dallas, Pa.; and the Goodman Manufacturing company of Richmond, Va.

Another Canal Scheme.

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—The movement for an international ship canal from the great lakes to the Atlantic, inaugurated at the deep waterways Toronto convention, has been crystallized through the draft of a bill which will be introduced in the United States senate the coming winter, probably by Senator Vilas of Wisconsin.

Six Men Drowned.

BOSTON, Nov. 29.—The fishing schooner Gracie H. Benton has been sunk in a collision with the steamer Reading of the Philadelphia and Reading line at the entrance of Boston harbor. Six of the Benton's crew were drowned.

The Shooting Accidental.

RICHMOND, Nov. 28.—The shooting of Mrs. Estie Baker at her home on the outskirts of this city yesterday afternoon by her young nephew, Peter Jones, was purely accidental, so the members of the two families say.

He Got Off Luckily.

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 29.—Joseph J. Horman, who blew his wife's head off with a shotgun, has been found guilty of murder in the second degree.

Free Silver Resolution Adopted.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 29.—The Trans-Mississippi congress has adopted resolutions favoring free coinage of silver and favoring the Nicaragua canal.

Weather Forecast.

WARLIKE PREPARATIONS.

Alabama Authorities Prepared to Resist the Populists.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 29.—Notwithstanding the authorities disclaim any alarm over the contemplated actions of Kolb and his threat to be sworn in as governor on Saturday, there are warlike preparations going on in this city. Two loads of sabers have been sent around to police headquarters and guns are being brightened up in the military armories. Not only this, but the military of the state have been "invited" to be present at the state's expense to attend the inaugural ceremonies, and there are other indications that the authorities are expecting trouble with Kolb and his crowd.

The Kolbites members of the legislature are sullen and silent. They are non-committal and affect to know nothing of Kolb's intentions. Kolb has been in the city, and he reiterated his purpose to be sworn in as governor and to denounce the incoming governor as a fraud and usurper. He said: "If there is any trouble I will not be responsible for it. I will adopt only peaceable means to secure my rights."

Action Against Baker's Estate.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—Six actions have been begun by the National Shoe and Leather bank against as many parcels of real estate in this city, which it is claimed were purchased by the late Frederick Baker with money belonging to the bank. It is claimed that Baker fraudulently obtained the money by investing the money in real estate in the names of other persons for his own benefit and that he actually owned some of this property. It is declared in the bill that previous to Jan. 1, 1891, Baker owed the bank at least $100,000, which he obtained in collusion with Bookkeeper Seely and fraudulently appropriated to his own use.

Ward Retires From Baseball.

MARKED DOGS' EYES.

An Explanation Wanted of the Presence of These Tan Spots.

Can any of your readers explain the meaning of the tan spots seen so commonly over the eyes in black and tan dogs of most breeds?

When in Melbourne last year, I went carefully over all the dogs in a show with one of the stewards, and we found the spots in all the black and tan terriers, foxhounds, deerhounds, collies, lurchers, etc., but I could get no information regarding them from the experts.

In some of the highly bred toy dogs, as the small black and tan terriers, I found on inquiry that these spots, formerly so very conspicuous, were being bred out and had nearly disappeared. Their persistence through so many strongly marked varieties, except those of late date, is singular, for there is fairly good proof that when first domesticated the dog was red or brown, like the pariah, dingo, etc.

As far as I can see, we do not find the spots white on a black or dark ground, nor yet black or dark on a white or light ground. My explanation is that they have arisen as a permanent marking after the dogs "sported" to black under domestication and have been preserved and developed through natural selection. Possibly they are protective and simulate eyes.

One morning, just at dawn, I had occasion to go out into the garden, and while stooping to examine some flowers, near a fence partly covered with creepers, I suddenly saw an animal's head looking through, and what seemed to be two seemingly large and ferocious black eyes glared at me. Suspecting that a black leopard was about to spring over, I started back, clapped my hands and shouted. To my relief, however, I saw a tail wag and found that the spectator was a cooly's dog I knew very well and which recognized me. The use of the tan spots—in this case at least—then occurred to me.

May it not be that the spots thus serve a protective purpose and have often saved the lives of dogs (black dogs) from their enemies, the smaller felines, such as the clouded leopard, etc.? Perhaps the matter is not new, but if it is it seems worth looking into.

I have several dogs about here now with black bodies and heads. The tan spots, rather pale, are of the size of a shilling. I have shot one, keeping the skin of the head as a curiosity.—S. E. Peal in Nature.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. William Clark, Huston's addition—a daughter.

The Turners cleared an even $100 by their dance on Monday evening last.

Robert Kelley has removed from Rochester to this city where the family will reside.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bolton, Sixth street, entertained the Utopia club on Tuesday evening.

W. J. Harvey has secured a position in Pittsburgh, and will take up his new duties the first of the year.

Charles Tiffin, who has resided in this city several months, moved to Greenfield with his family yesterday.

Archie Bruce shipped his household goods here from Rochester this morning and will make his home in this city.

The Junior Mechanics of Chester will attend church at Asbury chapel next Sunday, and will be accompanied by Pride of the East council of this city.

Squire J. N. Rose is confined to his home and will hardly be able to attend to business for several weeks. He is suffering with a bad cold which affects his face and eyes.

The friends of Attorney Marshall were eating venison yesterday, the liberal limb of the law passing around portions of that buck he secured when in the wilds of West Virginia.

In spite of the gravity of the event it is said that a number of bets were made in this city on the result of the McGregor trial, but the persons confined themselves to the jury finding a verdict or disagreeing.

The dance given by Haynes' Military band at the rink was not attended so largely as expected but was a success in every way. The best of order was preserved and the dancers enjoyed themselves until 1:30 o'clock this morning.

The East End pottery, which has been shut down for several days owing to broken machinery, will start up tomorrow morning. The engine first placed in the pottery was of the second hand variety, but it will probably be replaced by a new one. The break down caused a general loaf among the employees.

Superintendent Andrews, of the electric line, has issued strict orders that no motorman shall give information of a news nature to reporters under penalty of discharge. A certain young man who thinks he is a reporter has been subjected to a notice ordering him to pay his fare because he talked about a pass which he did not have.

A letter to Lieutenant Sinclair of Company E from George M. Connell, of New Lisbon, announces that he cannot arrange for the production of the "Fall of Atlanta" here on the dates secured. The play will be produced in Salem under Mr. Connell's supervision at that time and the local militia will likely postpone their performance until next spring.

The vast amount of matter sent from New Lisbon to this city since the McGregor trial began shows that the long distance telephone is an instrument of value to a newspaper office. The service given by the company is first class in every particular, and could not be made better. Manager Swaney and his assistants can well be proud of the manner in which the news was handled.

Reverend Dittmore, the Uniontown evangelist who has been working in this city, said this morning that he had never met with such success as crowned his efforts in this city. He repeatedly stated that East Liverpool was the most Christianized town he was ever in, and there were more Christians here in proportion to the population than any place he ever saw. The gentleman has traveled a great deal, and is in position to talk intelligently.

Chief Gill was called to the region of Burford pottery yesterday afternoon, where he found a subject for the city jail. The Burroughs residence was evidently the wrecked condition of the furniture, and the lord of the manor was still smashing things generally when the chief arrived. Burroughs was locked up and this morning fined $7.60. He gave the mayor security for the amount and was released.

There were numerous tramps in the city of East Liverpool last night. A well known resident of our place, who makes a habit of walking about our thoroughfares each evening for exercise, was accosted during his jaunt last evening three different times by pedestrians, each time with a request for loose change, one interlocutor being very earnest after refusal on the part of our citizen, following him up and making the plea: "See here, my fine fellow, were you never hard up? Were you never compelled to tramp or beg? Open your heart and give me a dime."

Cleanable Collars and Cuffs.

"Celluloid" collars and cuffs are one of the greatest blessings that was ever brought to mankind by the genius of invention, especially the man whose occupation demands that he wear his Sunday clothes every day, as Bill Nye puts it. A daily change of linen runs into a considerable laundry bill in the course of a year. "Celluloid" makes it possible to add this item to the year's savings. Many men when buying waterproof collars and cuffs make the mistake of believing that it's all the same so long as they are called "celluloid." This is a grievous error. The genuine "Celluloid" collars and cuffs are peculiarly made, being in reality a linen collar or cuff covered on both sides with pure waterproof "Celluloid." This prevents cracking and increases the durability of the article. When soiled, it can be wiped off with a damp cloth and made to look equally as well as the most skillfully laundered linen. All dissatisfaction with "celluloid" collars and cuffs can be avoided by looking for the trade mark "Celluloid" stamped on the inside of each piece.

Morrison Made no Confession.

The statement that Harvey Morrison made a deathbed confession regarding the McGregor case is evidently false. Chief of Police Joseph Warren, of Wellsburg, stated to a News Review reporter last night that he was at the bedside of Morrison when he died also all the time Reverend Selby was there, and not a word of Liz Ewing's murder passed the lips of the then dying man.

Lady Rosebery's Necklace.

Some years ago an old Frenchwoman died in a poor part of Dublin, and her little effects were put up for auction. Among other odds and ends was a necklace of dirty looking green stones, which did not attract much attention. However, a shrewd pair of Jews thought there might be "money in it" and decided on purchasing, clubbing together £5 for the purpose.

On taking it to a well known jeweler he promptly offered £1,500, which sum they refused, and sold the necklace of purest emeralds for £7,000 in London, where Lord Rosebery on his marriage purchased it for something like £20,000.

The old Frenchwoman's mother had been attached to the court of France, and the emeralds had once formed part of the crown jewels.—London Answers.

CHANTING PRIESTS.

A SERVICE OF SONG NO HEARER
CAN EVER FORGET.

An Important Part of the Greek Church of Russia—The Baying, Bull-like Voices of Monks Intoning Prayers For the Czar.
A Magnificent Tomb.

The chant of the priests' voices was the most striking thing that I encountered in my travels in Russia a year ago. Never in any place have I heard music at all like it. More like the cry of some great animal or the moaning of a musical wind it seemed than human tones. Deep, strong, roaring, yet soft and melodious, it haunted me as no music had ever done. This intoning, which forms so important a part of the Greek church in Russia, is performed by men who are chosen especially for the tremendous depth of their voices, to be used in intoning alone, not singing. Trained and cultivated into still greater strength and depth, there is in the whole wide world no human sound like it.

There are only certain parts of the service that are thus intoned, such as "Halleluiahs," "Lord have mercy," "Lord, we pray thee," "Grant this, O God," but above all, "Save long, O God, the life of the czar!" Over and over again are these words moaned, sighed and roared, like a varying wind, through the arches and galleries of the splendid churches of the most splendid country of the world.

There is a priest in the Church of St. Saviour in Moscow who was pardoned and brought back from Siberia solely because of the extraordinary depth of the tones of his voice.

These great baying, bull-like voices bring to their owners, it is said, a very good income. The last part of the service is always the loudest, and the last words, in a tremendous final roar, are always the petition to save long from death the czar. Unlike the Latin service of the Roman Catholic church, the common people of Russia can understand much of the service of their church, as a part of it is in modern Russian and the rest in old Slavonic. Thus that cry which rings through the churches to save the life of the czar is understood and felt by the humblest subject in Russia.

Although this intoning can be heard everywhere in the churches throughout Russia, the best example of it is perhaps in the famous Alexander Nevsky monastery in St. Petersburg. At 4 o'clock every afternoon the priests' chant can be heard there, and no traveler should miss this extraordinary spectacle. In the winter, when the higher classes are in town, there are long lines of elegant conveyances at the door, that have brought the fashionable Russian devotees to hear the monks chant. But at all times of the year it is a resort not only for Russians, but for the strangers from the hotels. The monastery is at the end of the fashionable Nevsky Prospekt, the Fifth avenue of St. Petersburg. In the green inclosure there are many buildings connected with the monastery, but it was to the chapel where the monks chant the evening service that we first directed our steps one afternoon late in June. Far back in the dimness, in a chancel behind two altars, was a collection of large, brawny men. Their long black robes, high black velvet caps and long flowing veils, all of black, magnified their height and their imposing appearance. Their beards were long, and heavy locks of hair hung like thick manes on their shoulders.

They were already chanting, when we entered, in those peculiar organlike tones which I found the most impressive thing in Russia. How that strange volume of sound moaned and rose and fell throughout the structure! How it waivered in our ears, like a mighty wind, and always, whether loud or soft, in the saddest, sweetest melody! There were half recitative solos, chanted first by one voice and taken up by the others. "Lord have mercy!" "Lord grant it!" they waivered and moaned until it seemed as if the sound would never again leave my ears.

After a time it ceased, and then the procession of towering black robed monks came out into the body of the chapel, leaving but little room for us as we crowded ourselves against the wall. Placing themselves with their backs toward us and their faces toward the altar in a semicircle, they began their chant in a different and much louder refrain, "God save long the life of the emperor!" Never shall I forget that semicircle of black monumental figures nor the waves of sound that still vibrated on the air after their voices had ceased.

We turned away and walked across the green courtyard, where many rich Russians are buried. All Russians esteem it a sacred privilege to be buried in the soil surrounding a monastery, and among those who lie here is the novelist Turgenyeff. We traversed numerous cloisters, with now and then the tall, black veiled monks passing us, until we reached the chapel of Alexander Nevsky, the czar monk who lies buried here—buried in such a tomb as no other man ever had, for it is of solid silver, weighing 3,350 pounds. Not only the sarcophagus but the altar near which it stands and also the rails which surround it are of solid silver. A likeness of the great czar, who was also a monk, lies on top under a sheet of solid gold. Diamonds and rubies gleam in the sconces that hang here and there, and the key of Adrianople, framed in jewels, hangs near the silver tomb. Strangemingly of austerity with splendor is this wonderful chapel! In this same monastery are the famous coffers of jewels and gold and gems untold that were brought from Persia on camels' backs during the reign of Alexander Nevsky.—Cor. New York Sun.

DAWSON'S NARROW ESCAPE.

He Couldn't Be Expelled From a No Work Club For Obvious Reasons.

Bailey Dawson was in danger of being expelled from the Society of Christian Repose. The object of the society, as its name indicates, is to discourage endeavor of any character, and its members, who comprise such well known old residents as Colonel A. M. Babcock, A. N. Kellogg, founder of the newspaper publishing concern; Frank Parmelee of the bus line, and others, are men who think they have done their work in life and now only ask for rest. They meet at the Grand Pacific hotel and do not even talk much, preferring to sit in the easy chairs in the rotunda and look at each other.

But last week Colonel Babcock brought a serious charge against Bailey. He said he had gone to work; what is more, he had the evidence to prove it.

Things looked really badly for Bailey. The work was no harder than that involved in drawing the pay attached to a political office, but it was work, and he could not deny it. So he took refuge in technicalities. Mr. Kellogg was trying the case, and to him Bailey made this plea:

"If it pleases the court," he said, "the members of this society must not do any work of any kind?"

"They must not," replied Colonel Babcock sternly.

"They should not indulge in any kind of effort?"

"Certainly not," again interjected the colonel.

"They cannot consistently take action of any description?"

"They assuredly cannot."

"Then," said Bailey triumphantly, "I would like to know how they are going to expel a member; that means action." And President Kellogg sustained him, holding that it would be impossible constitutionally to even take a vote on the charges.—Chicago Tribune.

MONOCLES IN EUROPE.

Their Use Believed to Have Originated in the British Army.

In every capital of Europe the monocle is common enough. It attracts no attention on the street. In a row of men at the theater a considerable proportion are sure to have it. Perhaps half the officers in the German army wear monocles. They are to be seen in abundance at any meeting of the French academy. Even socialist deputies in France are not ashamed to go among their constituents wearing them. A session of the English house of commons glitters with solitary eyeglasses. The single eyeglass is said to have originated among the officers of the British army.

About the beginning of the century an order was issued that army officers should not wear eyeglasses or spectacles. It was supposed that they gave the wearers an unmanly appearance. The order caused severe inconvenience to many short sighted officers, and one of them, belonging to a crack regiment, invented the single eyeglass. He claimed that, being an eyeglass, its use was no contravention of the order which prohibited spectacles and eyeglasses. It soon became very popular in the army and was afterward adopted. On account probably of this origin the single eyeglass is very generally worn in Europe by army officers.

It is by some thought to give an aspect of determination and ferocity to the wearer, whereas eyeglasses lend an air of feebleness.—New York World.

Warmth In Old Age.

In old age remember that warmth and an even temperature are just as essential to the welfare of the aged as proper food. Many old persons die from bronchitis, for example, induced by exposure to a temperature which, harmless to the young and middle aged, acts severely on the lungs of the old. The bedroom of an old person should be kept at a heat of not less than 60 degrees, and naturally chills should be especially guarded against. In respect of the feeding of the aged, second childhood is like the first childhood. "Little and often," is the motto, and old people should have their food given them in a state of easy digestion, above all things.—New York Dispatch.
